

Professor Gerda Lerner

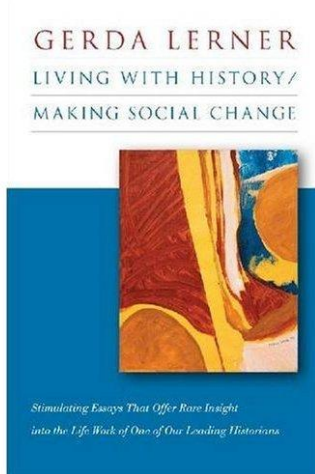

Professor Emerita, Department of History,
University of Wisconsin-Madison

Afternoon discussion:

Tuesday, April 21, 2009

4:30 PM

UCC Room 2520D (Old Capitol Center)

Discussion:

"Being A Historian in the World"

The Departments of History and Gender, Women, & Sexuality Studies are pleased to welcome Gerda Lerner, author of The Grimké Sisters from South Carolina: Rebels against Authority (1967), Black Women in White America: A Documentary History (1972), The Majority Finds Its Past: Placing Women in History (1979), The Creation of Patriarchy (1986), Why History Matters (1997), and Fireweed: A Political Autobiography (2003).

Professor Lerner will be reading at Prairie Lights on Monday, April 20th at 7:00 PM from her most recent work, Living with History/Making Social Change, published by the University of North Carolina Press. This event is open to the public.

If you are a person with a disability who requires an accommodation in order to attend, please contact the History Department in advance at 335-2299.

